Who Should Wear Glasses? Question Touches Every Individual Very Closely

Important Problem Confronting All Made Plain in Following Article.

EYE STRAIN IS GENERAL

People who "refuse to be bored" by learning anything about their eyes simply because their vision "seems" to be good, are taking very serious risks with their most precious faculty. No one can afford to lose good vision—but it often is lost solely by reason of that neglect which arises from lack of understanding.

Those who cannot see clearly need no warning to take care of their eyes, but the human eye is a long-suffering servant which never tries to avoid work which it can accomplish—even by extreme difficulty—and hence it is very apt to create a false impression of having greater power than it really possesses.

Many people have had vision without realizing it—they can see clearly, but do not understand what a tremendous effort this eyes are making to achieve this desirable result. This condition is called "Eyesight" and it results in severe headaches and nerve troubles.

You may be getting your clear sight in a similar fashion. You cannot prove whether you do or not unless you have your eyes examined. The only evidence you have of eyesight now may be in the form of headaches.

We can tell you scientifically, whether your eyes need help or not. We can ascertain whether your vision is good or bad in the sense of how it is obtained—whether at cost of undue effort or not. Until you settle these questions you cannot be certain whether your sight is safe or not.

Our modern system of scientific sight-testing places at your disposal full information about your eyes. It will enable you to care for your sight in an intelligent manner—in a way worthy of the highest of the faculties with which we are endowed. Not even an expert can estimate his visual condition and needs without a proper eye-examination.

There is an unhappy lot who have to suffer the penalty of life-long bad vision as a result of former neglect, and there are, unfortunately, very many such. It is far better to benefit by sound advice now than to wear glasses while sight appears good.

Is it not true that in every branch of science, the old saying, "Prevention is better than cure," is being more and more emphasized on this point? Apply that wisdom to the question of eyesight.

Your wish is to preserve good sight. You would prefer not to wear glasses. And you may imagine that we should advise you to wear glasses whether you need them or not. Nothing could be further from the truth—no person ever fitted by us can say that.

Our desire is for your best good. We are our own interests by advising you truly and conscientiously. We do not know of a single client who has anything but praise for our methods and skill. Why not let us advise you now? Dr. F. W. Myers, Optometrist, Over Woolworth's and 10c Store, Connelville, Pa.—Advertisement.

Bankers Study Farmer Finance

A SPECIAL effort to bring established banking facilities into closer relation with agricultural needs is indicated in the recently announced plans of the American Bankers Association for expanding the activities of its Agricultural Committee.

Professor D. H. Otis, a well known agriculturalist with extensive practical experience in farm management and finance, has been appointed director of the committee. He will have the co-operation of an Advisory Council of three of the nation's outstanding agricultural experts and educators.

This council is made up of President William M. Jardine of the Kansas State Agricultural College at Manhattan, Kansas; Dean William R. Dodson of the College of Agriculture, Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge, Louisiana; and Dean Harry L. Fausch of the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin, at Madison, Wisconsin.

Burton M. Smith, president of the Bank of North Lake, Wisconsin, is chairman of the commission. Discussing his determination to make it render an increasingly valuable service to the economic life of the country, he said:

"The underlying endeavor of the American Bankers Association will continue to be a better understanding and a greater co-operation between the banker and the farmer. The banker knows how to run his bank, but often does not fully appreciate one important source from which he obtains a large amount of the money with which he conducts his business. This is particularly true of the city banker. City banks have country correspondents from whom they receive large deposits. These deposits come primarily from the farmer."

"The Agricultural Commission has had its appreciation from the Association sufficiently increased to enable it to employ a paid agricultural expert, who will obtain the concrete facts as to needs in each Federal Reserve district. The director is a thoroughly practical agricultural educator who is ready to do more than desk work. The country banker will be met in his own bank and the farmer in his own field."

"Contact will be established with the United States Department of Agriculture, the agricultural colleges, the heads of agricultural associations, the heads of farm equipment manufacturing associations, state bankers' agricultural committees, farmer-banker committees, the packing and allied interests as well as farm products, the Commission of the Great Lakes Waterways, agricultural publications, those handling the railroad problems of the farmer, legislators interested in the establishment of farm credit institutions, and with those in charge of the boys and girls farm clubs.

The farm must be made an attractive future field for the boys and girls of the country. They must be trained in business methods and in cultural pursuits. Here must come the co-operation of the Agricultural Commission and the Educational Committee of the Association.

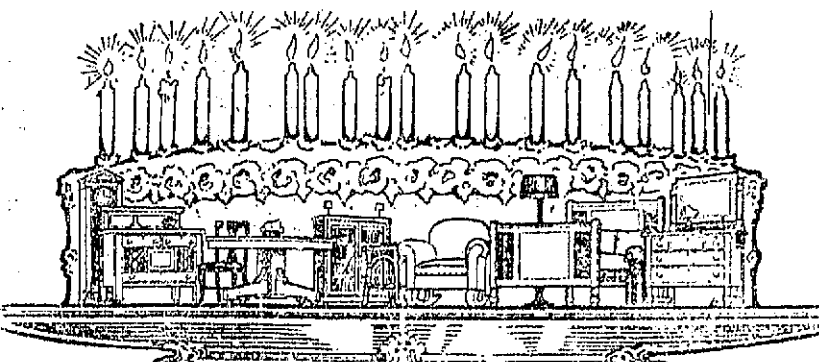

D. H. Otis, the new director, was born and raised on a dairy farm near Tazewell, Illinois. He was graduated from Kansas Agricultural College, and after taking his master's degree there, became an assistant in agriculture. In this position he looked after the details of experiments in crop production, stock feeding and hog raising.

Later he was elected professor of Dairy Husbandry, and then advanced to professor of Animal Husbandry, his responsibilities being broadened to include teaching and experimental work in relation to beef cattle and hogs.

A Practical Farmer
In order to enlarge his practical experience, Professor Otis resigned from the Kansas Agricultural College and became, in 1919, manager of the Danville Hatch, a 2,600 acre farm in southeastern Kansas. Here he had wide experience in handling farm help, in raising various crops and in feeding these crops to steers, sheep, cattle and hogs. He was called back to academic work by the University of Wisconsin as assistant professor of Animal Nutrition. Professor Otis later was made assistant dean of the College of Agriculture and professor of Farm Management.

Three and a half years ago Professor Otis resigned from the University of Wisconsin to become director of the Banker-Farmer Exchange of the Wisconsin Bankers' Association. In this position he developed a plan whereby a farmer may let what he has to sell at his local bank. The prospective buyer can likewise record his wants at the bank. The list of items are forwarded to the headquarters of the Banker-Farmer Exchange, which acts as a clearing house, bringing the buyer in touch with the seller. During the fifty-eight months of dairy cattle and a large number of individual animals were handled.

cessively high duties would have to be paid.

The truth of the matter is, that the Fordney-McCumber Tariff, all things considered, is the lowest rate law ever enacted from the standpoint of the protective policy. The Republican law of 1909 averaged through its four years about 20 per cent. During its last year it fell 18 per cent. The old Wilson-Gorman law of 1891, a Democratic measure, carried an average of 21 per cent.

The new Republican Tariff Law, in addition to making it possible to maintain the American standard of wages and living in the industries, increasing customs receipts and lowering the average rate of duty on imports, is a harsh indictment of the protectionist power of the Democrats. In every instance and in every particular, it has run directly counter to their predilections.

Probably A Matter of Choice.

A Keweenaw editor would like to know: "If a man depends on or depends from it, is it a matter of choice or is it a matter of necessity?" It may have been a matter of choice.

BUD BOUNCED IN.

"I never was so ashamed," said she, telling the pitiful tale to me; "I was the proud Mrs. Regal, met in her finest coat and hat, and the haughty Mrs. Rich sat there; And I knew from the shell of her eye that she was snatching the place some day to find."

Something that didn't suit her mind, something which she could criticize, (dislike, disapprove of, and despise—When suddenly with his wondrous grin, And covered with mud, your son bounced in."

"There wasn't a button on his coat, his waist was open at his throat, I heard the proud Mrs. Regal enough And I noticed his creditors were almost off."

His face was smug, his hands a glow, And when he had stepped I couldn't guess, But there stood like a pauper's child And grinned at the women who merely smiled."

No shame about him, as told as brass, Those two proud women he dared to pass, And he answered me, when I said, "Well, Well!"

"We were playing a game and I tripped and fell."

"What will they think, and what will they say?"

"I can hear them talking the tale today; I can hear their gossiping has begun; They certainly do not doubt their mind. They say not live in a stylish place, But that's no excuse for a dirty face, And the town who could do, if she had good taste."

Is it a few buttons on his waist? When I chuckled and said, "Never mind, my dear, Better a mud-covered boy round here, With a son with his ragsy grin, Than a mansion great where no child comes in."

THE HAPPY HOME.

A happy home—how shall it be attained? Not by the way the wood is carved and stained, Not by the polished mantle or the stair, Not by the treasures safely sheltered there.

But by the joys, the laughter and the din, Which those who cross its threshold carry in.

Glad hearts which wake to greet the morning sun, Make for the work the builder's hand has done, And dark those rooms and gloomy all the while.

Unless some face shall light them with a smile, Silent these walls and solemn every thing.

If no one here a merry song will sing, Think you a house has stored within its life?

Listen, boys and girls, to the pantry shelf, The joy you need and store for day by day.

Do you expect the painted walls to play, If with delight you set this home away?

You who abide herein must make it so, Welcome the friends who gladly come to cheer the hall.

Here let their laughter ring that none may say, That he is happier when he's away.

If from this house contentment you would win, Bring with the door and let contentment in.

Aaron Company Celebrates Thirty-Second Anniversary

The Aaron Company, Connellsville's pioneer furniture house, is celebrating its 32nd anniversary. Aaron's is indeed, a pioneer institution and there are few business enterprises in the city with such a long continuous record. In fact, there are few furniture houses in Fayette county with a record of service as long as that of Aaron's. E. Aaron is still here and heartily after having passed his 80th birthday anniversary. While the founder of the big furniture house is no longer its active manager, nevertheless he may always be found at the Connellsville store where he enjoys greeting thousands of customers who have become his fast friends.

Aaron's of today have outdistanced by 32 years the establishment which first bore the name of the founder. While its growth has been marvelous, expanding from a really and truly country furniture store to an organization of several big stores, its progress made step by step and in keeping with the times. From the first store in the Old Fellows Building in old Main street to the present block and then on to Greensburg, Brownsville and lastly with the building of finest furniture houses in Western Pennsylvania, in Uniontown, the growth of the institution has kept well to the fore with the progress of these communities.

Big institutions of this kind are not built in a day nor a year. The successful business dies with the winter winds, as it were, but the enterprise that is founded upon solid business principles, honesty and courtesy lives on and ultimately becomes monuments to the memory of their founders. Good names in business as well as in individuals never die. The house of Aaron's was well founded 32 years ago otherwise the name would probably have long since been forgotten. The fine principles that made the name of Aaron's a trademark of superiority, of honesty and of quality are the same today as they were 32 years ago. Aaron's grew up with the community and as they grew and prospered so did the confidence of the people in their business grow with them.

Aaron's never slighted quality for profit. In fact they made quality the real business principle and exacted a bigger profit than was consistent with good business methods. That principle made and retained thousands of customers throughout all these years and every day it adds new ones. The result is that not only has this community demanded an enlargement of store facilities but other cities have sought the establishment of an Aaron store.

In the very near future the annual anniversary program was and never an event that furniture buyers have looked forward to with no small amount of pleasure for many years. No doubt the sale this year will be on a much greater scale than any similar event of the past.

The funeral service for Mrs. Edward Fotters was held in the Tarr Methodist Episcopal Church, Friday, in charge of Rev. Anna Edwards. Lewis Quarz of Point Marion spent Easter with his parents.

Skin Eruptions Are Usually Due to Constipation

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowels to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus causes regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

Tattooed From Birth.
It used to be quite common in Fiji and Samoa for a man to bear upon his arm or body a certificate of his birth which was practically indelible. Tattooing is carried on in these islands to an absurd extent, and it is the practice to tattoo on the hand of a mother the date of her children's births. Sometimes, also, an enthusiastic father will tattoo the date of the birth on the child itself, and no matter how long it lives, the certificate will remain easily decipherable. In some adjoining islands every child is tattooed almost from head to foot upon completing its twelfth year. The result is remarkable, especially if the child is growing rapidly, as the spaces between the tattoo marks increase in size year by year.

Better Enforcement Of Labor Laws of State Is Proposed

By Associated Press

HARRISBURG, April 2.—Better enforcement and administration of the labor laws is the prospect, advanced in the biennial report of the State Industrial Board.

This is to be obtained through, widening the scope of the board's power of ruling on specific cases where the law is not enforced or not enforced enough. It was learned today, the Legislature has given the Industrial Board wide regulatory and investigating powers, which have been confined since the creation of the Department of Labor and Industry, largely to matters affecting the safety of industry, according to the records.

It is contemplated in the administrative code reorganizing the state departments to bring before the Industrial Board all matters affecting the welfare of industry which the secretary of the department may deem.

During 1921 and 1922 approximately 1,000 rulings were made by the board. They embraced such subjects as hours for women workers, children in theatres, industrial home work, apprenticeship, unemployment, meat and poultry ship holders for industrial purposes, approval of safety appliances, and hundreds of other questions arising from complex administration of the labor laws.

The volume of work transacted by the board during the last two years is shown in the report. A total of 301 meetings were held, including the regular meetings of the board, committee meetings and public hearings.

These meetings, according to the report, brought to the service of the commonwealth over 1,000 people who without financial return, assisted in carrying on the work of the department.

The new safety standards were drafted, making a total of 37 now enforced by the Department of Labor and industry. The new law opens are industrial sanitation and inspection, fire protection, tunnel construction and work in compressed air, locomotive boiler and

At the of the demand and importance of these codes to industry is shown in the record kept last year on the issuance of safety standards. A total of 25,159 was sent out during the year 1922, and of which were sent on request. The greatest demand was for the laundry, elevator, head and eye protection, industrial home work, ladders and locomotive codes.

Power and Order Locomotives.

There were 17,227, or 218 per cent of the total number of locomotives on that in need of repair, a decrease of 224 compared with the total out of commission February 1922.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

Thinking for Himself.

I never show my child how to do anything that he can figure out for himself. The other day he tried to put three sheets of paper in a box that was an inch too short. I permitted him to discover the discrepancy. He experimented a moment, then carefully folded the end of each sheet to fit the box. I might have forced it for him right away, but it is letting a child do such logical thinking in little things that develops his reasoning ability.

FAMOUS AUTHOR THANKS TANLAC UPON RECOVERY

Popular Song Writer Declares It Ended Indigestion and Restored Perfect Health.

E. Fortunato, nationally known song-writer and publisher, of No. 8 Fifth St., Philadelphia, in expressing his gratitude to Tanlac recently, said: "Tanlac treatment helped me so much I consider it worth many times its cost." Coming from the man who wrote "Sweet Melody," "Since You Told Me You Cared," "The Song the Breeze Blows To Me," and other popular airs, it goes without saying that such a statement can be confidently relied upon.

"I suffered from a severe case of indigestion with constant pains in my stomach," declared Mr. Fortunato. "My food disagreed with me and did me little good. I always had a bad taste in my mouth and splitting headaches. I was miserable. My stomach was so upset that I could not eat for months till a friend advised Tanlac."

"I am glad to say the medicine not only ended my stomach trouble and made me eat better, sleep better and work better, but improved my health in lots of ways."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitutes. Over 37 million bottles sold—Advertisement.

PROPER CARE OF TIMEPIECE

Sensitive Piece of Mechanism Seldom Given the Attention Which Should Be Accorded It.

On cold days many of us are annoyed to find that our pocket or wrist timepieces are not behaving well.

Suspecting dirt or "fret" mechanism, we take our timepiece to be examined and doctored.

But how many of us have ever attempted any blunder to ourselves when their timepiece goes out of order?

A watch is a highly sensitive piece of mechanism. About 75 per cent of us, on setting for the night, place our watches on the cold washstand or mantelpiece, and during the night, the air having burned down and out, the atmosphere of the bedroom becomes chilly. Now, all metals contract with cold, yet many express surprise when they see in the morning that their timepiece has gone wrong.

The best plan to prevent your watch from becoming "frozen up" is to sleep with it under your pillow. This even the temperature of the body, incidentally, your watch is in a safer resting place!

It is generally thought that it is merely a matter of convenience whether a timepiece is wound up at night or in the morning. The answer is the latter time, because, fortified with the latent power in the spring, the mechanism is more able to withstand the jolts and shakes it receives during the day.

The painter's idiom.

The painter's idiom is spoken to paint, truly enough. But paint is a highly specialized medium, the specific quality of which is not readily comprehended by most people. Words, if anything, are popularly understood. To write about paintings properly is as far as possible to translate them from a more difficult to a less difficult medium. Since the justification of every art is its ability to say things which no other can, no translation can ever be complete; but enough of the message of painting can be indicated by words to arouse curiosity, to sharpen perception, to convey delight.

So that by interesting people in what can be said about paintings they may be led on to an interest in the paintings themselves.—Vivian Barker, in Arts and Decorations

Ten Commandments of Buddha.

Thou shalt drink no wine or anything to intoxicate. 6. Thou shalt avoid all anger, hatred and bitter language. 7. Thou shalt not indulge in idle or vain talk. 8. Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's goods. 9. Thou shalt not harbor pride, envy, revenge, or malice, or desire the death or misfortune of thy neighbor. 10. Thou shalt not follow the doctrines of strange gods.

Title in Balance When Unity Frat and Green
 Quintet Meet Tomorrow

St. Vincent Is Only Club Fraternity Has Not Won From Yet.

BIG CROWD LOOKED FOR

Another feature of the game program night between the St. Vincent Club and the Unity Fraternity is that the Green Quintet will be the only organization in the City tonight which has not taken before the Unity Frat. A victory by the frat would knock St. Vincent out of the title into a tie with the Casey Club for first place. In such an event a three-match series will be necessary.

The frat was greatly disappointed by its failure to win from the Green Quintet last week, the defeat putting the Unity and the Casey Club in a tie for the title. However, to prove it still returns it old strength the club will go after the Green Quintet with a determination to win.

With such a prospect in sight the crowd tomorrow night will be the largest that has ever attended a City League game. A big delegation from the Casey Club and surrounding points will be in to boost St. Vincent and the Casey Club supporters will be out in force to pull for a Fraternity victory.

Last season the Casey and St. Vincent teams tied for first place and the Green organization won the title by taking two straight games. The Casey Club had a 1-2 record and the Casey Club supporters will be out in force to pull for a Fraternity victory.

There will only be one game tomorrow evening. The contest will be in the High School gymnasium. The opening whistle will sound at 8:15 o'clock and in the following hour the most important floor battle of the season will be played.
